It is, to my mind, the one and only as a political power in Hawaii

To Republican Voters of the Third Precinct, Fifth Representative District,-Greeting;

The time is close at hand when you will be called upon to declare, by your choice of delegates to the District Committee and Territorial Convention, whether the county and municipal government plank in the Republic can platform shall become a living issue. I believe it to be the issue upon which the struggle for political suprem acy in Hawaii shall be fought at the coming campaign. If the Republican party is to dominate, if it is to be the leading factor in shaping the future management of local political institutions, then our delegates must be pledged to work and vote for a platform that will admit of no equivocation or doubt on the question of county and municipal government

As Republicans, we have to answer for the party's defeat to a Republican Administration. Shall we explain defeat away by saying that it was due to factional and continued opposition to the popular will? Must the Republican party here, amongst whichmay be found the men representing interest in every business enterprise in the Territory, be relegated to political insignificance and inactivity because the people cannot obtain through it the rights and privileges accorded them under American institutions? Let us hope not.

Peraistent opposition to popular demand can only result in defeat at the polls. It allenates Republican supporters from our ranks. The fact most not be overlooked that the electorate is largely Hawaiian, whose sym pathles are still strong for local and independent self-government. Let us, therefore, not further aniagonize them, but rather assure them that the Republican party still believes that they are possessed of sufficient in telligence to carry out the duties of sail government.
